

Calling all Future Teachers!

Participate in the Tomorrow's Teachers Speak Up research project and share your ideas about teaching with the nation!

Online surveys are open for input March 1 to June 2, 2017. Visit <http://bit.ly/SUTomorrowsTeachers> to take the 20-minute survey.

Tomorrow's Teachers Speak Up is a unique opportunity for America's next generation of teachers to "speak up" about their views on their career choice and share their ideas about how to leverage technology within learning.

The national data findings will be used to inform national policies on technology use in education, and to inform K-12 school and district leaders on the aspirations of tomorrow's teachers.

Participation is open to all students in teacher preparation programs both at the undergraduate and graduate level, teacher education faculty within Schools of Education, as well as career changers in special programs, regardless of prior student teaching experience.

Visit

<http://www.tomorrow.org/tomorrowteachers/index.html>

for more information

Tomorrow's Teachers Speak Up will be open for input March 1 to June 2, 2017!

Registered schools will receive their free data in June 2017.